

Food to go

What started as an endlessly reusable, non-toxic silicone storage bag has exploded into a global mission that's preventing over a billion single-use plastic bags from entering our oceans and landfills.

Stasher founder Kat Nouri began her mission to reduce plastic waste and created a totally unique and revolutionary product. Something beautiful, something functional, something you could reuse over and over again – inside and outside of the kitchen. With a background in designing and developing silicone textiles, Kat produced the world's first patented, self-sealing platinum silicone storage bag that gives back to the planet with every sale, and every time you use it.

As a proud member of 1% For the Planet, a portion of every Stasher sold goes straight to high-impact non-profits that are dedicated to preserving and rehabilitating our oceans. So far, Stasher has sold millions of bags preventing over 1 billion single-use plastic bags from entering our oceans and landfills.

The plastic free, pure platinum silicone storage bags are:

- All in one solution - cook, store and freeze in the bag
- Pure platinum food-grade silicone
- Patented Pinch-Loc™ seal
- Meets FDA and European food standards
- Durable and endlessly reusable
- Comes in various sizes for different uses

Think outside of the box!

Stasher is not only ideal for storing those midweek leftovers. Both the Health and Beauty industry has picked up on the innovative brand including BirchBox who swapped their traditional box for a Stasher to deliver to their monthly beauty product subscribers.

Prices vary from £9.99 - £29.99
